

CROWN ROCK DESIGN

STEVE STOUT

Weidrich Publishing publishes family histories, maps and other materials for those seeking to print their work. I developed screen designs for a redesign of their current site. The element present in their current site that they wish to retain is an old style of printing as relating to past history. Another element important to them is their horses.

I used an old paper background. I found some old photographs and digitally created torn edges. The photo of the horse I created by placing a photo onto a crumpled paper, placing a stroke border and then digitally tearing the edge.

This piece was created in Illustrator while using Photoshop for image manipulation. The color palette was earth tones with red for highlights.
